

Winston-Salem State University and the Academic Common Market

The School of Graduate Studies and Research at Winston-Salem State University participates in the Academic Common Market (ACM), a program of the Southern Regional Education Board (SREB). The program allows its member states to share academic degree programs which are not commonly available. North Carolina participates only at the graduate level (master's and doctoral degree programs).

The Academic Common Market is an agreement among participating institutions of the Southern Regional Education Board (SREB). (Participating states are: Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, and West Virginia. The agreement enables students to pursue not-commonly available graduate majors offered at public institutions in the other SREB states while paying in-state tuition.

If the public institutions in your home state do not offer graduate degree programs in your field of study, it may be possible to arrange a waiver of out-of-state tuition to attend a cooperating public institution of higher education in one of the states listed above. Each participating SREB state has a coordinator for the Academic Common Market. The state coordinator's name and address can be obtained by visiting the SREB website. Any student interested in participating in the Academic Common Market should contact his or her state coordinator. In general, a student must meet only two requirements to participate. The student must be accepted for admission into an eligible program and have his or her legal residence in the home state certified by the home state coordinator. In addition, the home state coordinator must verify that the program to which the student has been accepted is not offered in the home state. Institutions may have additional requirements; please check with the individual college or university.

ACM Program at Winston-Salem State University

Nursing
Rehabilitation Counseling

ACM Coordinator at Winston-Salem State University
Dr. Linda Nixon Hudson, Associate Dean