

2017 Feed Your MIND Series

PUBLIC SPEAKING

Powerfully Present Your Ideas to an Audience

NOV 10
12-4pm
$25 LUNCH INCLUDED
FOR MORE INFO:
www.wssu.edu/cepay
 WINSTON-SALEM STATE UNIVERSITY

Have you ever had to present in front of your peers or supervisors? Do you worry about the next time you might be called upon to deliver a message? Speaking in public is known to be one of the most feared activities that we do in life. In this workshop, we will dive into the key components that make for a great speech. We will learn the three requirements that every great presentation must have to be successful. Physical and verbal cues make a huge difference in how an audience perceives you; we will learn the best practices, and then rehearse them in a safe environment. By exploring the power behind storytelling, we will dissect what it is about stories that engage and inspire, while unlocking the hidden stories that lie within you.

OFFICE OF CONTINUING EDUCATION
Leslie Winbush
winbushlo@wssu.edu ■ 336-750-2138
James Pao paojh@wssu.edu ■ 336-750-3410

About the Instructor: James Pao is the Program Manager for Continuing Education and Summer Sessions at WSSU and has BS and MBA degrees in Management. Mr. Pao has taught many programs at WSSU including GRE Test Prep, Conflict Resolution, Financial Freedom, Creativity, and Emotional Intelligence with an average evaluation score of 4.8 out of 5.0.

